In the first place we repudiate the issue as it is stated by many advocates of prohibition. The question to be answered is not "will you vote for whiskey or for temperance?" but "is it your opinion that prohibition within the limits of Ontario will promote the cause of temperance?" We all desire temperance, but can we accomplish that end, by means of prohibition? If so is the means justifiable?

We desire to treat the subject under three heads. 1st—Total abstinence as a voluntary principle. 2nd—Total abstinence as a necessary discipline imposed by ecclesiastical authority. 3rd—Total abstinence as a legal enactment, or prohibition.

1st—Total abstinence as a voluntary principle whether it be an act of self-discipline, or an act of charity to strengthen a weak brother is undoubtedly a righteous thing and is considered by some of us to be the better way.

2nd—Total abstinence as a necessary discipline imposed by ecclesiastical authority has been adopted by some religious bodies, and they who are members of them are bound to submit themselves to this discipline.

The church universal, however, and our own branch of it,—The Church of England, imposes no such rule upon her members, and her great temperance society recognizes as members in good standing, both those who keep the vow of temperance and those who take the stricter pledge of total abstinence.

By the Word of God and by the teaching of Jesus Christ, temperance in all things is obligatory upon all who profess and call themselves Christians. But this gospel temperance is not necessarily (as some say) total abstinence. We, therefore, as ministers of Christ, deriving our commission from Him through His Church, cannot go beyond the Word of the Lord, and the authority committed to us, and READ INTO the Bible, the doctrine of those extremists who pronounce Alcohol itself in all its forms, its use, its sale and its manufacture, to be a sin against God and against society. We are not of the number of those who affirm that if our Lord or St. Paul were speaking in our day, they would use very different language from that recorded in Holy Scripture. We dare not impugn the Divine foreknowledge of the Master, or the inspiration of His servant.

3rd—Coming now to the question of prohibition.—Under responsible government prohibition can be brought about only by the action of the government at the demand of a majority of the citizens. If prohibition were merely a question of expediency, the government might be justified in thus yielding to the pressure of popular opinion. But it is not a question of expediency. The advocates of prohibition themselves for the most part go very much further than this and demand prohibition on the ground that the use of all alcoholic beverages is sinful. Now a thing is sinful only when it is contrary to the law of God, for "sin is the transgression of the law." Whilst, therefore prohibitionists affirm that the use of alcohol is contrary to the law of God, those opposed to them maintain that it is not. Is it seemly that the one party should invoke the arm of the law to enforce its interpretation of Holy Scripture upon the other, should the latter prove to be numerically tives in writing thus may be misunderstood by some and misrepresented by others. Those who are engaged in a traffic which they have themselves too often made utterly disreputable and loathsome will seek to claim our words in justification not only of that which is legitimate in their trade, but of that which is degrading and full of sin; and there are others who will be glad to see our words so misinterpreted. But none of these things move us. Whilst we are fully alive to the evils of intemperance, whilst we know that it is a sin against God, though by no means the only sin, or the most deadly; whilst we rejoice at every honest effort to combat it; whilst we commend the self-denial of many who for conscience sake voluntarily give up that which they feel to be an innocent indulgence, yet we cannot be guilty of the hypocrisy and cowardice of keeping silence, when our silence could be interpreted as meaning that we acquiesce in principles repugnant alike to our conscience and our reason, and which we know to be unscriptural and which we believe would be ineffectual to promote the cause of true gospel temperance.

A few words in conclusion.—The present movement seems to register a sudden and alarming drop in the mercury of faith. It is as if David in going forth to contend with the giant Goliath, had been smitten with mistrust of God, and had returned to gird himself with the armour of Saul. But what is the reason for this want of confidence in God? We have abundant evidence that past efforts in the cause of temperance have not been unsuccessful. In the popularity of temperance and the disrepute of drunkenness, in the improved liquor laws, in the changes in social customs, in the desire to train up the young in temperate habits, in the growth of temperance literature, and the support of the press, and in the positive increase of temperance in communities, we see some of the fruits of modern efforts in behalf of temperance, the contemplation of which should make the friends of the cause encourage themselves in God "who alone can order the unruly wills and affections of sinful men." Let us then not then give up the old battle cry "Jehovah-nissi" The Lord (not man) is our banner, in this greater struggle than that at Rephidim. Let us not relinquish divine methods of carrying it on, from impatience at the slow workings of Omnipotence.

"Faith in God and in men, prayer, patience, perseverance and the wisdom which is from above, these are our chief reliance and basis for hopefulness in the near future."

We are, dear brethren,
Yours faithfully in Christ, wealth under lawful and existing conditions and are entitled to it. It is not the wage earner's surely, for they have been toiling along as best they could. It must be in the conditions and yet economists say they are the most liberal that ever existed in the world. Under these conditions there would be a way out if the rich practised the religion of Jesus Christ, Whom they profess to follow. He said "He that has two coats let him give to him who has none" or words to that effect, for I am not apt in biblical quotation, but you can't make a millionaire believe Christ really meant it. That is one of the pitch holes in the road to Heaven which he drives round.

Casting aside such a Utopian suggestion there seems only starvation ahead of the poor or a miserable existence on public charity which asks many galling and impertinent questions. I tell you it is an almighty hard thing to turn a man away who asks for work. They come here to the mill gate in numbers each day and ask

DESERONTO.

The municipal nominations for the town of Deseronto took place in the town hall on Friday last at 10 a.m., resulting as follows: Mayor—E. W. Rathbun, (accl.) Reeve—Dr. Newton, (accl.) Deputy Reeve—A. L. Chandler, Robert Geddis and A. S. Vallean.

FOR COUNCILLORS.

Centre Ward—William Stoddart, N. T. Lowe, Geo. A. Parnham, Jas. Whitton and Jas. Dryden.

East Ward—Wm. Mellow, A. A. Richardson and Wm. Evans, (accl.)

West Ward—Wm. Irvine, L. Hoppins and Geo. E. Clement, (accl.)

The nominations for the School Board were as follows:

Centre Ward—A. H. McLaughy (accl.)

West Ward—Wm. Irvine (accl.)

East Ward—X. A. Richardson (accl.)

A lively election is anticipated at the election on Monday next, especially that concerning the deputy reeve.

A large majority for the plebiscite is also expected.

A large number of the members of Napanee Council of Royal Templars paid a fraternal visit to Deseronto Council on Wednesday evening of this week and were royally entertained by the local council.

La grippe has been and is still very prevalent here. There are very few homes that it has not besieged.

Christmas Day passed off very quietly here, there being little or no stir. The ice was in no condition for skating and nearly all the young people went to Napanee. In the evening the Methodist church was filled with an enthusiastic audience to hear the Christmas entertainment given by the Sunday School, and none were disappointed as it was a great success, and the children all went home happy after receiving something from the Christmas tree.

NAPANEE MILLS.

The question at the coming municipal election is, shall we vote for Martin as reeve of Camden and save that noble old institution the Newburgh-High School, or vote for Baker, who we understand is so deaf to the interests of the Camden people as to oppose the keeping up of that seat of learning where for years the people of Camden have educated their children and their children's children. I tell you when N. H. S. is attacked it strikes the people, especially in the vicinity of Camden East and Napanee Mills, where they live and where they have lived for years and I don't think we are so blind to our own interests as to send a man to the County Council in order that he may rob us of the advantages of the N. H. S. Another thing this man Martin don't seem to be afraid to speak up for our interests and I think he will make it somewhat interesting for his opponents in the council who advocate the pulling down of our temple even as he will make it interesting for Mr. Baker on election day.

Mr. Will Scott is with us again as manager of the firm of Scott & Co.

Mr. Geo. Dunlop is our new trustee, making the new man for the noble trio of Manden, Haines & Dunlop. We will drive them tandem soon, as we want the school house for a show. Mr. H. won't be in it.

Weir is auditor for the coming year and he is more than in it.

Mr. Bravender has returned from his trip through the western countries.

Messrs James McGuire and Frank Brown intend taking advantage of the special rates to Croyden next week to attend the annual dinner of the Croyden club.

Mr. Chas. Scouteu and his sister are spending the holidays at their mother's.

Mr. Howard is spending his vacation at the home of his parents, Keen, Ont.

Mr. Bert Clement and wife spent Xmas in Deseronto. Bert has just recovered from about three months attack of the grippe.

Mr. Allen, of the Cement works, spent Xmas in Deseronto.

Mr. Jas. Ferris, of Kingston, hiring men to get up his summer's wood. The mills here are short of hands in consequence thereof.

Mr. Hugh Davy, of the Napanee Road, paid us a flying visit Xmas day. We are always glad to see him.—Lazarus.

—The greatest flesh and blood maker in existence and a life-saver to consumptives is Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, "the kind that cures" bronchitis, coughs, colds and all lung troubles. Every bottle warranted. No oily taste like others. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at druggists.

Why should we employ high salaried teachers to do the work of our not overcrowded Universities and pay $1,200 for two assistants to perform the work properly belonging to the senior members of the staff. This accounts in some measure for the comparative failure at our annual examinations. If the board would see that the teachers devote their time and energies to the pupils entrusted to their care instead of trying to shine as University professors and wasting the time of the school in frivolous conversations, concerts and gymnastics, the record would be different. Then again why should the Board refuse to act upon the petition of the ratepayers to hold the election the same day as the municipal election? It is high time some new blood was introduced upon the Board.

DULL TIMES IN RHODE ISLAND.

Providence, R.I., Dec. 21st, '93.
To the Editor of THE EXPRESS.

I am in receipt of your Christmas Annual for which accept my thanks. It is a generous supplement to your bright and interesting paper and I am sure it will be appreciated by the people of Lennox & Addington. I am always pleased when I find the EXPRESS on my desk Saturday morning for I find in it news from home and where one is born is home and will always seem so. The spot round which childhood tangles the heartstrings are held forever sacred by memory, and the welfare of the people in the midst of whom we grow up is ever of keen solicitude to us.

It is a dull Christmas in Providence. The stores report a small volume of business and it is no wonder for there are many thousands of people out of work and the prospects for the winter are extremely bad. The presence of the poor in such numbers has a dampening influence on those who have the money to spend, and the rich mother who enters the store for Christmas gifts for her little ones, pressing through a crowd of pinched and eager faced children who look in, but have not the magic coin which gives entrance, cannot but feel that it is extravagance to buy costly presents when there are so many little stockings which will be empty when the morning of Christmas comes.

There is one immense store here in the window of which the curtain is drawn up each half hour and to the delight of the waiting children a Santa Claus loaded with toys comes down a chimney and fills the stockings of half a dozen large dolls who are supposed to be peeping at him from their bed.

"Gosh," cried one little hungry eyed newsboy last night, "if he would only come down my chimney that way."

"Rats," exclaimed a diminutive chum of his, who was evidently a cynic, "Yer won't git anything Christmas."

"I know I won't" returned the first humbly, "but I'd like ter, yer bet I would."

It is the story of little Japs of Tom-Alone over again. This city is full of such urchins and so is every city in this broad christian land which boasts of its progress and its wealth.

The cause of these hard times is difficult to arrive at. Some lay it to the fear of the new tariff, others to the money panic of last summer, but whatever the cause the distress is beginning to look like national calamity. There seems to be an over production of everything, even food, but this does not help the poor any. Merchandise is cheap and so is grain and other food products. The hitch is in the distribution. Who is to blame? It is unjust to say the rich manufacturer and financier are. They have made their

When they have secured a little pile they tie a string about it and carry it away. I have wondered how the farmers of Lennox & Addington with their acres of wood land would like to fight for their Christmas fire. I have wondered how I would like to thus scramble myself, and when I thus speculate Hamlet's famous soliloquy enters my head, "to be or not to be, that's the question."

I am afraid this is a pessimistic and gloomy letter, but there does not seem to be any bright side in the condition of the poor this winter. Everything seems at sixes and sevens in the Republic. The people elected the Democrats and now they would like to kick them out. The Hawaiian matter is developing into a national scandal and it looks just now as if this government was going to get entangled in the Brazilian revolution. There are objections you see even to being the "greatest and finest republic on earth." Canadians should feel happy that they are out of it all with nothing more agitating them than a prohibition plebiscite, which, by the way, seems to be making things lively for all. Rhode Island tried prohibition several years ago, going so far as to change the constitution by a two-thirds vote in its favor. It lasted a year or so and was then snowed under so deep that "we haven't seen it since." Prohibition is a mighty good thing in the ideal and so is socialism, but somehow there is an inherent objection in mankind to coercion. People don't like to be forced to sobriety any more than a horse likes to be compelled to drink. Perhaps when the rich man comes to believe that Jesus Christ was not delivering a political speech when he made that answer about the two coats prohibition may be possible. In my mind there has got to be done an almighty lot of heart softening and civilizing first, however.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a host of new subscribers for 1894.

I remain, Yours Sincerely,

F. W. SHIBLEY

THE PLEBISCITE.

DIOCESE OF ONTARIO.

Rural Deanery of Lennox & Addington.

TO OUR BRETHREN OF THE LAITY.—We, the clergymen of the Church of England, having the cure of souls in this Deanery, feel that the time has come when we ought to define to you and others our position in reference to the proposed plebiscite of January 1st, 1894.

The whole question of the manufacture, sale and consumption of intoxicants, and the legal restriction, or total prohibition thereof is one of immense difficulty, many great statesmen and philanthropists often holding the most diametrically opposite views upon the subject. The action of the Ontario Government, however, in precipitating the present vote, has forced upon every citizen the necessity of declaring his views either for or against the principle of prohibition.

prohibition is (quite unconsciously) we are sure, on the part of those who urge it) a reflection upon our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. He made wine at Cana and partook of it, inasmuch that He exposed Himself to the lying calumny "behold a gluttonous man and a wine bibber." Furthermore He commanded the use of wine in the blessed sacrament of His body and blood. If prohibition becomes law we shall have the conduct of Jesus Christ condemned as criminal by the Government of Ontario, and we shall find one of the elements used in the Lord's Supper branded as an unholy thing by the same authority. We are aware that of late years some Bible students have persuaded themselves that the wine which Christ made, used and sanctioned, was unfermented and unintoxicating. The great weight of authority amongst commentators and scholars, however, does not support this view, so evidently made to suit the occasion. At all events the question is set at rest for all members of our church by the deliberate and unanimous voice of the whole Anglican Episcopate throughout the world, assembled at Lambeth at the last Pan-Anglican Conference. According to this decision, unfermented wine (so called) does not satisfy the terms of our Lord's institution of the Holy Communion. This view, however, is not confined to the writers of our own communion, it is supported by those authorities to which we usually turn for information on questions of this kind.

We wish now to place before you as clearly as we can the exact issue which we are called upon to face.

Almighty God has seen fit to allow certain temptations to exist in the world, and these are for the perfecting of our faith, as St. James clearly shows. Amongst these are the temptations of the flesh, as for example gluttony and drunkenness. To resist these temptations He has given us His Holy Spirit with all His sanctifying influence, and we are charged to "walk in the Spirit and ye shall not fulfil the lusts of the flesh." But men have been ever inclined to the endeavour to improve on this Divine plan. In former years men shut themselves out of the world in cloisters, or deserts, in order to escape temptation. But now we are asked to remove the temptation by act of Parliament. Thus it is that in voting for prohibition we would be joining with the enemies of christianity, and admitting that what they say is true, viz.: that our religion is a failure, that the safeguards which God has given us therein are insufficient, and that we are forced to fly to the secular arm of the law to bring about that which the finger of God apparently could not accomplish.

If it be replied that prohibition is intended not to supercede the grace of God, but to work with it; whilst denying this assertion, we answer that even supposing total abstinence to be necessary to christian discipline, it would be an unchristian way of maintaining discipline to invoke the arm of the civil authority for the enforcement of it. Fasting is a necessary christian discipline, commanded by Christ. Would our prohibition friends join with us, should the millions who believe in fasting be mad enough to demand that the government prohibit food on days of fasting and abstinence?

The principle of prohibition once granted, what limits are we to place to its application? As has been well said "extend the principle to all other things which may ensnare our souls and bodies, and at last we will find ourselves in a world ungarished, swept and inhabited by one sex only, lest contrary to the promises of God we should be tempted above that we are able."

We have been warned that our mo-

In France neither men nor women cares very much for appearances, and so those who would levy blackmail must really discover something very heinous in the private life of their intended victim before they can hope to bleed him successfully, whereas in this pious and virtuous country of Pecksniff even the discovery of a mere peccadillo can, if carefully handled by the blackmailer, be used as a means of extorting money. Some years ago a clergyman—a married man, a popular preacher, and a man of

M'WHIRREL'S MOVEMENTS.

A Dozen People Recognize the Man
From His Picture.

The police state that the portrait of Mc-Whirrel published in The World was an exact picture of the man. This was further established not only by the ease with which Messrs. Cleghorn and Secor identified the picture, but probably a dozen people called at Police Headquarters
yesterday and stated that they identified McWhirrel from his picture. Among the number were Mr. Denning, proprietor of the restaurant in Bay-street;
George Ashdown, who keeps an eating house at 106 Church-street; Miss Brown of Avenue-road, and Mrs. Dorion of 492 Manning-avenue. As soon as Miss Brown saw the picture of McWhirrel in The World Christmas morning she came down town and told the detective department an interesting story. It was the first knowledge they had that McWhirrel did not leave the city on Monday. Miss Brown, who, by the way, called at The World and requested a contradiction of the statement that Mc-Whirrel occasionally took her out driving, informed the officers that McWhirrel had called at her place the Wednesday following the murder and had discussed the crime
with her brothers.

McWhirrel's movements have now been pretty well accounted for from the day of the murder up to the time of his arrest.
His movements up to Monday noon have been detailed heretofore. Tuesday he went to North Toronto. On that day he called in Mrs. Phillips grocery, just north of the C.P.R. track. He stopped at a Bloor-street boarding house that night. Wednesday he called at Brown's. Where he spent Wednesday night is not known, but next day he put in an appearance at Mr. Stable-ford's.

THE COUGHLIN TRIAL.

Continuation of the Examination at Chicago Yesterday.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—The cross-examination of Mrs. Andrew Foy was continued in the Coughlin trial yesterday by Ex Judge Wing. Counsel took up the examination at the point where Mrs. Foy swore to Martin Burke passing her house on the night of May 9, while she, her husband and several other persons were sitting on the front steps. Foy followed Burke and entered into conversation with him. The defence obtained from the witness the names and addresses of all the Irishmen who were sitting on the steps of the Foy residence that night besides her husband. One of them, Michael O'Connor, the witness said, is a member of the police force in this city. The defence intends to make witnesses out of any of these men who will swear contrary to Mrs. Foy's testimony. It is expected to impeach her in that way and Coughlin's lawyers are considering the advisability of putting the defendant on the stand in this connection.
Mr. Wing tripped the witness once and confused her for the first time. She testified last week, although not in reply to a question, that her husband and Coughlin never closed the door of the secret conference room in the Foy house after the night of the murder.
To-day she said the door was closed after her the night of May 10, when her husband and Coughlin were talking in low tones in the front room. After May 4, she said, Foy and Coughlin were "always talking about finding the body" when they met at her house. She was able to catch the tenor of their conversation, because every night she went into the room to "mind the baby."
The witness reiterated the significant conversation which she had with the defendant the night of May 12 when her husband was away from home, and she was afraid he had been arrested. She added to the story by saying Coughlin told her to have no fear, that she would be well taken care of by his friend, Alexander Sullivan, and that nobody knew who killed the doctor.

decision of the Supreme Court would be satisfactory. The club drew Mr. Ouimet's attention to what it claimed was an injustice in that the French-Canadians did not get their fair share of patronage in the public offices, and Mr. Ouimet promised to do his best to remedy the evil.

imprisonment for having been in the habit, during the past many years, of blackmailing a married lady, concerning whose maiden life he had discovered a fact which, if she had had the courage to confess to her husband, would at once have met with forgiveness. This, of course, all came out in the papers.

But, passing to facts that are more or less generally well known in society, but which have never been made public, we shall see that the game of chantage is even better understood in England than in France. A few seasons back a youth well known in society, who had been carrying on an intrigue with a married woman whom it will be as well to designate simply as Lady X, lost a large sum of money at cards. He had not the wherewithal to meet the debt, and he was well aware that in the event of his not being able to "weigh in," he would have to remove his name from his club to avoid expulsion. While in a state of perplexity arising from this stroke of ill-luck the youth received in his rooms a visit from a well-known London dressmaker, who made him the following proposition:

"You," she said, "have, I know, a great many compromising letters from Lady X, if you have not destroyed them. Now, these letters cannot be of any value to you, for you cannot use them yourself. Give them to me, and I will pay your gambling debt, and moreover, give you a trifle over for current expenses. What I shall do with the letters need not concern you, but this much I will promise you, and that is that nobody shall know you have sold them to me, for I shall say you were robbed by your valet, who brought the billets-doux to me. Is it a bargain?"

The poor cur lent himself to this infamous compact and got his money, the woman taking the compromising documents away with her. Then began two months of torture for Lady X, who brought back the letters one by one by borrowing money and pawning her jewels, until at length, in despair, she told all to her father, who is one of the most popular sporting men in England, and he completed the purchase of the letters, which cost in all over £10,000—an expensive correspondence.

There is a man to be seen every morning during the season in the Row, mounted on the smartest of nags, whose life would certainly be in danger were he to be met by one of his numerous victims in a desert place apart, for he has blackmailed—and still does blackmail—three of the best known and most popular men in society. He is a man of good birth himself, and was educated at Eton. He held a commission in a cavalry regiment, and belongs to one of the best army clubs, to which he was elected, thanks to the exertions of one of his victims, who dared refuse him nothing.
This man has had very large sums of money from a popular sportsman and financial magnate, and was mixed up in a terrible scandal which occurred some few years back and resulted in the death of a high court functionary and of a vicquary of a royal highness. The villain's victims are in such deadly terror of him that they dare not denounce him, and it is probable that nothing but a dose of cold lead or steel will put a stop to his persecutions. A man in this fellow's employ—for he has his agents and spies—was sentenced to penal servitude for life at the Old Bailey some ten years back for attempting to blackmail a youthful member of Parliament. The agent was not so clever as his employer, and did the thing clumsily, with the result that the matter was placed in the hands of our most famous criminal solicitor, and the heavy sentence just referred to put a period to the scoundrel's career of crime.
There are charges so terrible and foul that, although they may easily be disproved, still they leave some stain on the character of the person against whom they have been falsely made, and it is the knowledge of this fact that inspires
the blackmailers with almost incredible audacity.—London Letter to San Francisco Argonaut.

Something of a Curiosity—Mr. Stead Took a Hand in All Affairs There, and Ran the Meeting to Suit His Own Ideas—His Is a Marked Individuality and His Work May Result in Good.

It is always interesting and sometimes instructive to face a strong individuality. This is an age of mechanical invention and mental sham. There is no doubt about its inventive genius, but genius is always exceptional, towering above the masses as Himalaya towers above the plains. Genius needs no rudder but its own inspiration. The great average of humanity, however, are sheep in need of a bell-wether to pass to the promised land. When steeped in absolute ignorance these sheep are the prey of demagogues who play upon honest natures for selfish purposes.

After reaching the dangerous level of thinking they think men and women of conviction are more dangerous to the community than the absolute ignorant. Obsessed by fads presented for their adoption at the point of the bayonet, they say in deed or word, "Take our nostrum or woe unto the Nation. The fate of Sodom and Gomorrah is near. Woe, woe, woe! There is but one road to salvation, and we are the signboard. Follow or be damned."

Did you ever read "Joshua Davidson," a novel by that clever woman Mrs. E. Lynn Linton? If not, please do. It will make you very miserable, but it will set you thinking and will convince you that there are various kinds of crucifixion, and that although nailing to a cross is not now fashionable, Christ would undoubtedly be persecuted to death did he walk the earth to-day.

PRACTICAL CHRISTIANITY.

Joshua Davidson is a carpenter of this century who starts out in life determined to be a practical Christian. He loves his neighbors as himself; he fulfills the golden rule. He is misunderstood, maligned, despised, and is finally stoned to death. I've been thinking a great deal about Mrs. Lynn Linton's hero ever since I became an editor, for I find him trying to get a hearing in this country, knocking at many a door only to be turned away as an unwelcome guest. His name is reason.

With unmitigated ignorance, led by demagogues on one side, and underdone thinkers led by fanatics on the other, Reason is well nigh crushed between the upper and nether millstone. Neither extreme has any use for that most uncommon sense ironically called common. Believing that the world is improving because facts show it, having no specific for its regeneration, but feeling certain that continued agitation alone will drag us out of present sloughs, I spent last Sunday afternoon and evening in Chicago's great Music Hall, Mr. William T. Stead, a London editor, had issued a general invitation to the public, especially publicans and sinners, to meet him to discuss ways and means for driving the devil out of Chicago. Mr. Stead named the special sinners whose presence and the relation of whose experiences he most desired. As the most degraded of both sexes have no desire to be made shows of, Mr. Stead must have known that his audience would consist for the most part of two classes—the curious and honest seekers for light in the direction of helping the poor.

WHY SHE WENT.

Agreeing with the prayer-book that we are all miserable sinners. I went to Central Music Hall Sunday afternoon out of curiosity. Finding a seat in the first balcony I watched and listened, not having liked Mr. Stead's methods in certain attempted English reforms. His hounding of Parnell and Sir Charles Dilke and his whitewashing of the Prince of Wales, almost at one fell swoop, had prejudiced me against the man. I went to judge. There was a lack of generosity and justice in this editor's attacks that made his excuses for the hair-appearance most offensive to a lover of fair-play. However, if Mr. Stead had found the way of driving the devil out of our big cities, I for one was ready to do my utmost to help so great a work.

Mr. Stead has a strong individuality. There are no two ways about it. He is every inch himself. His talk, walk, manner, actions are sui generis. His voice is agreeable in tone, sufficiently powerful to be heard in large halls, his enunciation is distinct, and he gives the impression of earnestness. He is accus-

unique Englishman lacks tact, grace and many qualities needed in an ideal chairman; but I also know that he "got there" last Sunday.

Deeply interested in Mr. Stead's address in the afternoon because of its sympathy with our struggling masses, I went again to Central Music Hall Sunday night to learn what would be proposed to better their condition. So densely packed was the auditorium as to force me to seek refuge on the platform, where I otherwise should not have been. Thus it is that accident makes us actors in many an unexpected drama. At this second meeting Mr. Stead was his own chairman. He was not satisfied with the chairman of the afternoon, knew best what he wanted, and proposed to attain his purpose. We all like courage.

STEAD HAS AUDACITY.

The very audacity of Mr. Stead commanded admiration. He did his own praying, delivered his own benediction, did his own thinking, quickly shut off speakers who rambled, and snubbed those who introduced dynamite, religion and politics. He rambled himself, was at times inconsequent and intolerant, displayed weak spots in his armor, but he accomplished something before the night was over. A great audience sat eagerly from 7.30 until 11 o'clock listening, for the most part with approbation, to remarks from the Chairman and various speakers. That audience did not go home until it was resolved with only three dissenting voices that the formation of a civic federation for public welfare was eminently feasible, and that a committee named then and there should meet to appoint a committee of twenty-one to begin work.

Call Mr. Stead what you please, he has planted good seed. It often needs a stranger within our gates to arouse us to a realization of facts. "I've lived so long in Washington and become so used to the vagaries of Congress," said a brilliant journalist to me not long ago, "as to be unable to picture much that is fantastic and wrong. Looking at the scene with fresh eyes you will find food for 'copy' that I should not dream of."

THE POINT OF VIEW.

By the same token, Mr. Stead looked at Chicago as I have been looking at it, from the point of view of a stranger. He sees, as I have seen, defects which can be remedied if there be applied to them the same enthusiasm, the same determination, the same intelligence, the same civic pride, that have made the White City the wonder of the world. On the day preceding these mass-meetings a foremost citizen of Chicago said to me: "Of what permanent use will our World's Fair be to us if we do not make our city correspondingly clean and free from the blots that taint great communities and that especially afflict us owing to our tremendous foreign population gathered from every quarter of the globe?" It did my soul good to hear these words from such a source. Here was the soil in which to work. Mr. Stead but repeated in his own way twenty-four hours later the very criticisms of one to whom Chicago owes much and who owes much to Chicago. Let the proposed civic federation take root in the western metropolis and I prophesy that its branches will extend throughout the republic to the glory of Christ and the redemption of humanity. There is nothing Utopian about it. If after professing Christianity for 1800 years earnest men and women of different trades and professions cannot unite on the broad platform of the golden rule and set to work cleaning out such an Augean stable as Hercules never conceived, the "heathen" left over from the parliament of religions can truthfully say that the pretended followers of Jesus have not yet learned the alphabet of their professed faith.

The New K. of L. General Master.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 27.—General Master Workman Sovereign of the K. of L. issued an official statement in which he outlines the course he will pursue. He says the order must put its principles into the statutes of the country and make them a part of the practice of society. He continues, "Everywhere is starvation and death while corporate greed and avaricious money lords apply the arrogant lash with relentless fury, and Congress like a wooden god looks down in silent contempt on the miseries of the most patriotic and industrious people the world ever saw."

THE KING OF THE MATEBELES AND HIS "COURT."

Lobengula, King of the Matebele, whose capital was destroyed a few days ago, has come up on the horizon all of a sudden. He is an interesting character, and his "court," which is the pen where his herds are gathered by night, is quite unlike anything that Americans ever saw or heard of.

Lobengula is a copper-hued sovereign whose weight is 300 pounds. His royal toggery consists of an old slouch hat and a string of monkey skins round his waist. In respect to attire His Majesty is retrograding rather than advancing. Some years ago he consented to wear an old coat and trousers, but as the Englishman moved up nearer Lobengula's gold mines and cattle ranches, the fat, greasy King flung away his clothes and patronized his own tailor, who, according to the description of the regal wardrobe, must have a good deal of leisure on hand.

Lobengula inherits his scepter. In this respect he ought to have more consideration from Great Britain than he seems to be receiving. His father, Moselekatse, was a king and a warrior bold, who slew his rivals as fast as they showed up. He was smart enough to found his kingdom in a section of South Africa where the rivers run to the sea and game is abundant, and the earth rich with the metal which made California and which recently caused the American Congress a good deal of trouble. Lobengula is now supreme master of all. He is more of an autocrat than the Czar. His subjects number 300,000, and the cattle and sheep of the entire country round about are his. He is King, Premier, Chief Justice and executioner. His word is supreme. He has 10 wives, and, according to his own edict, he has the privilege of selecting four new ones every year. He claims to be a Zulu, but an Englishman who has seen him and talked with him says he is no more Zulu than an American is English. But Lobengula need not worry himself about what he is so long as he has the distinction of being acknowledged the Gladstone and Bismarck of his race.

Lobengula, like most prominent men, has his peculiarities. One of the chief of these is his aversion to photographers. He carries this so far that one is justified in thinking Lobengula must have some knowledge of the kodak fiend. An Englishman sought a sitting from his majesty, who declined on the ground that his subjects would object for the reason that the photograph would contain a part of the soul of the king, and that wouldn't do. After many importunings and on the promise that his subjects would not know it the king consented to try one sitting before the camera. The arrangement was made for the following day, but when the photographer appeared he was informed that the king had changed his mind, and lest he might be won over he had left the loyal kraal for a day's outing and would not return for some time. However, the Englishman kept on the royal track until he got a snapshot at him and his favorite Mrs. Lobengula. Of the latter it was said that if she had been at the Columbian Exposition she would have made a great hit in Midway.

The throne of Lobengula consists of a biscuit box. When he has occasion to grant a special audience, however, he invites the interviewer to the inner court, where the cattle and sheep are fed and herded at night. The throne in this inclosure consists of a pile of logs which is also the royal slaughter pen. On it every morning there are slain six bullocks, the number required to supply the cuisine each day. And here the favored guest of Lobengula is invited to a confidential interview.

The Englishman who was honored with an audience in this royal kraal gives a glimpse of the menu on that occasion.

"White visitors when paying their respects to the court of Lobengula are expected to eat three plates full of grilled beef and drink three cans of beer, each can holding about a gallon. As one plate of beef or can of beer is finished another follows. Frequently when his sable majesty's back was turned I used to get the little slave boys who hang about the court to assist me, but he caught me at this on one occasion and reproved me, so that I had to resist the temptation in future. All he said was, 'Do you think I cannot feed my own dogs?'"

An Important Arrest Which Throws New Light on the Case.

At 7 o'clock Sunday night Detective Slemm walked into Headquarters Police Station with John Walker, alias Kenzie. This is the young fellow who drove with the "young Englishman," as he is called, to Butcher's house on Saturday morning with Williams' horse and cutter.

At 3 o'clock Sunday morning Detective Slemm received a telegram from Constable Williams of Peterboro, a small station on the P.R.R. 30 miles east of Peterboro, that he had arrested a young man answering the description of one of the men who were seen with the Williams' horse at Little York. Through the courtesy of the C.P.R. officials Mr. Slemm was able to leave the city at 5 a.m., get the prisoner and return to the city at 7 p.m.

John Kenzie, or Walker, has been in the hands of the police before. In the regu's gallery at headquarters he is known as No. 1457, age 20, height 5 ft. 6 in., dark complexion and hair, light eyes, go, large nose, forehead, English. Two years ago for his arrest on a charge of stealing a gun from James Herbert, 107 Teraulay-street. A year ago he was wanted at Peterboro on a charge of larceny. On Dec. 11 last he was arrested for having in his possession a set of Dickens' works. He could give no satisfactory explanation as to how he came by them. He was brought before Magistrate Denison and remanded until the 21st.

On Dec. 14 he was allowed out on his own bail. After leaving the Police Station he hung around town. Between 9 and 10 o'clock at night he dropped into Fitzgerald's Hotel, York-street. He was stopping at Tobin's. While in Fitzgerald's he got into conversation with a man whom he did not know, but who gave his name as McGuire. This man was Walter McWhirrel. McWhirrel told Walker that he had a horse to sell, and asked if he could find a purchaser. Walker said he knew a man named Donoghue near Little York who might purchase it. They separated for the night, Walker going to Tobin's and McWhirrel remaining at Fitzgerald's. Friday morning they had breakfast together at Tobin's.

At 10 o'clock the same morning McWhirrel told Walker he had to go up near the Exhibition Grounds to meet a man who had driven in with him from the country the day before. When Walker first met McWhirrel the latter was wearing a pair of low shoes. On Friday when they parted he had on a pair of long rubber boots.

Walker went to bed in Tobin's at 9.30 o'clock. About 11.30 he was awakened by someone pounding on his bedroom door. McWhirrel came in, still wearing the rubber boots. As he was undressing he told Walker that his (McWhirrel's) clothes were wet. He slept in the next bed to Walker that night.

Sunday morning they breakfasted together, separated and met by appointment near the market. McWhirrel drove up with the horse. Walker thinks it had been kept in a stable near the market for the night. They drove along Queen-street east, avoiding the toll gate. They were heading for Donoghue's, for whom Walker worked for a short time two years ago. Donoghue did not want to buy a horse. They turned north towards Little York. When passing Butcher's house, McWhirrel noticed the milk cans. Walker said he knew Butcher, that he might buy the horse. Walker told Butcher that he (Walker) worked for Donoghue for a while and asked if he remembered him. Butcher said, "Yes, you are Jack." Butcher did not want the horse, but he and McWhirrel had a conversation. McWhirrel and Walker drove down to a hotel and had a drink. McWhirrel told Walker to drive the rig back to Butcher's, as he had made arrangements for him to keep the horse over Sunday. Butcher took the horse, and McWhirrel and Walker tramped back to the city and stopped at Tobin's Saturday night.

Sunday they walked out to Butcher's. Butcher was not there when they arrived, but came along shortly afterwards. In the meantime McWhirrel was grooming the horse. Blacksmith Davis joined them. Walker denies that he ran into the barn when Davis came along, and McWhirrel told Butcher he had found a purchaser for the horse and came out for it Monday morning. They returned to the city. McWhirrel went to Tobin's. Walker had no money and went to the Salvation Army Workmen's Hotel, Victoria and Shuter. Before they parted that night arrangements were made for Walker to go after the horse and meet McWhirrel in the vicinity of the Don River. Walker was to receive a dollar for his work. On Saturday Walker handed McWhirrel a small memorandum book issued by the Royal Insurance Company. McWhirrel tore out a leaf and wrote on it 29 1/2 Parliament-street, and handed both book and leaf to Walker, at the same time telling him to give the memo to Butcher, so that he would know where to go for the cutter and harness, as Butcher was going to keep them for him until he could dispose of them.

Monday Walker went to Butcher's gave him the memo and arranged to meet in King-street, near the Ontario Brewery, at 3 o'clock, when Butcher was to be told whether the sale had been made or not. Walker drove off and met McWhirrel at Minard's Liniment Is the Hair Restorer.

McWhirrel appeared in the Police Court yesterday morning. When the Magistrate called his name he stood up. He wore a long, light colored ulster, closely buttoned, which hid his clothes. Only the tips of a white collar and part of a blue necktie were visible. The prisoner looked entirely unrepentant. His countenance expressed neither fear nor confidence.

The C. J. asked for a verbal remand until to-day. This was granted, and McWhirrel was immediately driven to the jail.

John Kenzie, alias Walker, McWhirrel's companion at the time the horse and cutter were at Butcher's, was also remanded until to-day.

This morning Detective Greer will leave with the prisoners for Cooksville, where he will hand them over to the Brampton authorities and the inquest will be resumed.

McWhirrel denies all knowledge of the murder, but admits the sale of the horse to Lowrie. He claims that he bought it from two men, who were strangers to him, but one of whom wore a pea-jacket, but refuses to say when or where he met the men.

His visit to the house of George Death at 4.30, and to the house of Mrs. McKay at 5 o'clock, enquiring at each for the Williams residence, and showing that he knew the man by asking if he was not old and crippled, has already been told. At Death's he said he was cold, and it was getting dark and he wanted to reach the house before night.

As soon as he read the description of the man suspected in the newspapers Barrister Heighington told his wife that he was satisfied it was his former coachman McWhirrel. He was a man quite capable of doing anything, said Mr. Heighington—a thoroughly unprincipled scoundrel. "He evidently has friends in England, as he used to receive letters from there. Since he left I have made it a rule that my coachman should never leave the premises unless I was at home, as I was afraid he might return. He was more than suspected of numerous robberies in that district. There is a little belonging to him in my house now."

McWhirrel is believed to have boarded in the vicinity of Wilton-avenue and George streets. He claimed that he had a trunk at a house in Scarborough-road.

The police have been informed that McWhirrel has a brother in New Mexico, hence his reference to that country in speaking to Doherty and Primrose, referred to elsewhere.

A reporter saw Prof. Smith at his residence last evening. He stated that the man's story in regard to calling on him was untrue in every particular.

From the time Stableford said good-bye to McWhirrel at the Woodbine on Nov. 24 he did not see him again until 6 p.m. Dec. 11. On that day McWhirrel came to Stableford's house and remained until Wednesday the 13th at noon, when he left. While there he stated that he was stopping with Mr. Parks, a gardener at Deer Park.

His next appearance at Stableford's was on Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Stableford says when he came in he looked ill. She asked him what was the matter. He replied that he was drunk and "had been on the drunk for some time." Stableford told him he could remain overnight. Next day McWhirrel asked for work. Stableford said he could not afford to pay more than $6 during the winter months. McWhirrel wanted more money, and Stableford suggested that he try Mr. Secor, who wanted a man. This was how the negotiations with Secor commenced.

Mr. and Mrs. Stableford, who are a good-hearted, hospitable, friendly English couple, were very much surprised at the arrest of McWhirrel. They both spoke in the highest terms of McWhirrel yesterday to a World reporter. They said he was an attentive and industrious young fellow, always agreeable and willing to assist in any kind of work about the place. He took excellent care of the stock, was kind to the children, and always seemed cheerful and happy. During the time he was with them he only took one day to himself. That day he spent in the city. While with the Stablefords he corresponded regularly with Miss Fanny Parks of Deer Park.

McWhirrel often spoke of his former life. He said he was born on the Clyde. Mrs. Stableford thinks Greenock was the place he mentioned, but was not certain. He claimed to be the son of a lieutenant in the English army who was killed in the Zulu war. He said he had a sister in Ottawa at one time who taught languages. She grew tired of Canada and returned to Scotland.

The Stablefords say McWhirrel can talk French fluently. He told them he learned the language while with his father in the army, and at another time said he picked it up while paddling milk boats. McWhirrel appeared in the Police Court yesterday morning. When the Magistrate called his name he stood up. He wore a long, light colored ulster, closely buttoned, which hid his clothes. Only the tips of a white collar and part of a blue necktie were visible. The prisoner looked entirely unrepentant. His countenance expressed neither fear nor confidence.

The C. J. asked for a verbal remand until to-day. This was granted, and McWhirrel was immediately driven to the jail.

John Kenzie, alias Walker, McWhirrel's companion at the time the horse and cutter were at Butcher's, was also remanded until to-day.

This morning Detective Greer will leave with the prisoners for Cooksville, where he will hand them over to the Brampton authorities and the inquest will be resumed.

Mail and Express Cars Looted By the Brigands—Passengers in the Coaches Relieved of their Valuables—Several Saved Large Sums By Hiding the Cash Under Seats.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 27.—The first entirely accurate details of the Kansas & Arkansas Valley hold-up at Seminole, L.T., Saturday evening, reached Little Rock at 2.50 this afternoon, when the robbed train arrived. Seminole, the scene of the robbery, is a flag station nine miles south of Coffeyville, Kas. There is no town there and nothing to mark the spot, save a side track and small platform. Train No. 232 reached Seminole Sunday night shortly after dark. The switch had been turned throwing the train on the siding. The switch is on a heavy up-grade and the train immediately came to a standstill. There were no cars on the side track, as has been stated. When the train stopped two men mounted the engine and began by robbing Engineer Bush Harris of his watch and $40 in cash. They then proceeded to the mail car and rifled the mail pouches. Mail clerk H. B. Pinckney, who was in charge, was forced to deliver the registered packages. After abstracting the cash, the letters were handed back to the clerk. Pinckney was relieved of his watch and 85 cents in change, 25 cents of which was returned to him to buy a lunch. An entrance to the express car was gained without resistance on the part of the express messenger, as there was nothing of great value on board. The robbers commanded Messenger Ford to open the safe, from which they took two small packages, value unknown, and $100 in money. Finishing their work in the express car, the robbers turned their attention to the passenger coaches. The two men went through the cars while the other two maintained a constant firing on the outside. So much time had been consumed in the mail and express cars that the passengers had ample opportunity to secret their valuables. Very little of value was obtained in the coaches. The robbers appropriated all the overcoats and watches in the cars, but the sum total of the cash they secured will approximate less than $500. Several passengers saved large sums by hiding their purses under the car seats. Both of the men who went through the coaches were young men, neither being over 23, and had the appearance of unsophisticated country youths. When they went through the sleepers they displayed an utter ignorance of sleeping-car berths. The robbers did not use abusive language to the passengers and offered no violence. None of the passengers were armed, and there were no acts of heroism or unusual incidents. The train was held one hour and

GREAT POWERS STRAINING THEIR RESOURCES.

Circumstances Throughout the World Do Not Appear to Favor Peace—Everywhere the Great Powers Stand Watching Each Other With Incessant Suspicion and All are Making Preparations for War.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—The Times, reviewing the general political situation, dwells upon the discord at home and says circumstances throughout the world generally appear to favor peace and good will as little as in South America, where political movements are conducted with the aid of shot and shell.

"Everywhere the great powers stand watching each other with incessant suspicion," The Times observes, "straining their resources to the utmost in preparing for the anticipated attack. Happily there is no immediate danger of war, but it is idle to deny that in many quarters and between many peoples the tension is greater now than it was a few months ago."

The Times maintains that the safety of the British empire demands attention to the defenses.

TROOPS AND MOB FIGHT.

A Riot Arises Out of the Anti-Tax Agitation in Palermo.

PALERMO, Dec. 27.—Lercara di Fredi, the scene Saturday of a fight between a mob and a body of troops, growing out of the anti-tax agitation, last night witnessed a more serious affray in which four persons were killed and many wounded. The fight Saturday, in which two persons were wounded, further inflamed the anger of the people and last evening they determined to make another demonstration against the odious octroi tax and the municipal councillors who insisted upon its enforcement. A large crowd gathered and paraded the streets and finally became so riotous that a body of troops were dispatched to disperse them. The troops attempted to clear the streets, whereupon they were set upon by the rioters, who attacked them with stones and other missiles. The soldiers, who were supplied with ball cartridge, were ordered to fire upon the crowd and they poured a volley into the ranks of the rioters, the effects of which caused most of the latter to flee in dismay. Four of their number were left dead in the street, while many others fell to the ground more or less seriously wounded. Great excitement prevailed in the town and it may be that further trouble will occur when the funerals of the victims are held.

During an anti-tax riot at Terrasin, near this city, the octroi offices were set on fire and completely destroyed. A riot was caused in Valguarnera to-day by a police commissary arresting a Socialist, who was preaching revolt. A thousand men and women stormed the gendarmes barracks in an attempt to rescue the prisoner, but were repulsed. The mob afterward set fire to the town hall, the postoffice, the magistrate's office and the residences of the mayor, police commissary and several citizens, all of which were badly damaged or destroyed.

Cholera on a British Ship.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—A despatch from Sourabaya states that five of the crew of the British ship Mary L. Barill died from cholera while discharging at that port. The vessel sailed from New York June 5 and arrived at Sourabaya Oct. 10.

King Lob Has Fled.

CAPE TOWN, Dec. 27.—A despatch from Major Forbes, commanding the field forces of the British South Africa Company, says the Matabele have been completely subjugated. King Lobengula has fled, and he apparently has no intention of returning.

A despatch from Bulawayo dated Dec. 18 says: "Natives have repeatedly asserted that Capt. Wilson repulsed Lobengula and continued the pursuit. No news has been received from other sources. A strong patrol with supplies has been despatched to overtake the Wilson party, who had only what food and ammunition their handoliers contained. Dr. Jameson is disbanding his force, but will re-enroll to form a permanent police force. The natives have been informed that their disarming will not be an absolute condition of peace, but their desire for peace is so strong that a great majority of them give up their arms voluntarily. It is reported that Gambo has submitted. All the other indunas have already yielded. Premier Rhodes says that the road from Bulawayo ing the man was going to write his mother in Scotland. He wrote a letter, but no one saw to whom it was addressed.

When McWhirrel arrived at Stableford's on the 11th he wore a new suit of clothes and a fawn frieze overcoat and stiff hat. When he returned on the 21st he wore the famous peajacket and the pair of trousers that he had when he first left the house, the overcoat and a brown fedora hat. They never saw the peajacket before nor never saw him with an imitation fur cap of any kind. During his last stay with the Stableford's he never mentioned the murder, and they had only heard a faint rumor of it, as they only subscribe for a weekly paper, and seldom or never see a daily. They are quiet, unassuming people, earning a comfortable living and minding their own business.

Although McWhirrel said nothing of the murder to them, after the visit of Messrs. Secor and Cleghorn on Christmas night, he walked to the farm of R. P. Linton, a mile distant, and had a talk with George Jinks, the hired man. He brought up the subject of the murder and commented on the crime. He said, "What a terrible thing this murder is! The man who did it should be hanged."

It will be remembered that when McWhirrel left Stableford's at the expiration of his engagement, he took away a black stick, with the peculiar head already described. When he returned the last time, he brought back the head only. The stick had got broken, he said. When his effects were taken from the house Monday evening the head of the cane was overlooked. Yesterday a World reporter took charge of it, and will hand it over to the detectives to-day.

When McWhirrel was on his way from Toronto to Stableford's on Thursday last he rode from the Halfway House to the second tollgate with George Coathup, who works for John Herron of Highland Creek.

Mr. Thompson Jackson, a prominent farmer in Seaboard, gave McWhirrel a good character, in fact everybody did with the exception of Mrs. Curtin, who is a neighbor of the Stableford's. She was not surprised, as she always considered him a loose sort of a fellow, and he had nothing on his back when he came there and had no references.

VISITED THE VILLAGE.

How Two County Constables Missed a Cleyer Capture

On Friday last McWhirrel went up to Woburn village. He dropped in at Burrow's Hotel and then visited the Postoffice store of Mr. Matland Secor and purchased a plug of chewing tobacco and some candies, paying 19 cents for his purchases. He had on at the time a long frieze overcoat with velvet collar. Mr. Secor, who knew McWhirrel from his previously working in the vicinity, complimented him upon looking well, and said "That's a nice coat you've got on. What did it cost you?" McWhirrel made no reply, and looked in another direction. In fact all the time he was in the store he evaded looking at Mr. Secor, gazing around the store. As he was going down the road Mrs. Secor, who was at the window, observed him and thought she recognized him from the description published. "I believe that is the man who murdered Williams," she subsequently said to her husband. Next day she told County Constable Tidsbury, who was in the village, but he evidently did not believe it and did not go to the Stableford farm. As soon as she saw the picture in The World Monday evening Mrs. Secor said to her husband, "Didn't I tell you he was the man?"

County Constable Burns was at the adjoining farm Sunday, but of course did not know how near he was to the man who was wanted.

THE PEAJACKET FOUND.

Stains Which May Be Blood and May Be Paint.

After McWhirrel had been brought to the police station his trunk was searched. It contained the peajacket which played so important a part in tracing the movements of McWhirrel. It also contained the vest McWhirrel was supposed to have worn on the night of the murder. On this vest are a number of stains which look like blood, but may be paint. The vest and peajacket will be submitted to Prof. Ellis to be analyzed with a view of seeing whether human blood-stains can be detected. No trace of the imitation Persian lamb cap could be discovered. In McWhirrel's trunk were found a number of pictures of actresses and a miscellaneous collection of letters, etc. The fact that no money was found in his possession would indicate that he secured the abundance as the result of his atrocious crime.

names of the four robbers, and it is believed their capture is only a question of a few days. Chief of Detectives Thiel, who has been at work on the Oliphant robbery, was in this city, and immediately on receipt of the news of the hold-up Sunday evening he left on a special train for the scene of the crime, reaching there a few hours after the bandits had taken their departure.

THE ROBBERS USED DYNAMITE.

Details of Sunday's Hold-Up Near Los Angeles, Cal.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 27.—Interviews with trainmen and passengers who were on board the train which was held up near Los Angeles yesterday elicit the following facts regarding the robbery: The train left Los Angeles in charge of Engineer Stewart, or "Rocky" Bill Stewart, as he is known by trainmen, and Conductor Simpson. Near Roscor, a little station this side of Burbank, the engineer was shot at from a tender and told to stop the train. He stopped it. A lively fusillade followed to intimidate anyone who might desire to interfere with the plans of the robbers. The engineer and fireman were made prisoners and the engineer compelled to light the fuse of a bomb placed against the door of the express car three separate times. The first two attempts failed. At the third he was told to stay by the fuse until it fizzled and to run afterwards. He obeyed. The express car-door burst open and the express messenger, Potts, was thrown from the cot where he was asleep. The express messenger held up his hands and got out of the car. Just what happened after that is a mystery, for Express Messenger Potts has been cautioned not to speak about it by the officers of the express company. After the robbers left the express car they made the engineer, fireman and express messenger walk up the track a quarter of a mile, fired off a fusillade and then let them walk back to the train. Prior to bursting in the door of the express car with a bomb the robbers had terrorized every head which showed from a car window by taking a shot too conveniently near, and the San Fernando constable who attempted to reason with them and assert his rights as an officer was driven back into the coach with some pretty strong language and a pistol shot. A shot was taken at the baggage-man, and others were told to stay in and keep quiet. It is reported that the robbers did not get over $10 in booty, but the mystery of the affair, outside of the identity of the robbers, is what they did to the safe, which the officials of the Wells-Fargo Company will not, for the present at least, explain.

One of the robbers had a red bandana handkerchief tied about his face and the other wore a white flannel mask. They were both about 5 feet 9 inches in height. One would weigh about 175 pounds and his companion about 10 or 15 pounds lighter. They were both armed with Winchester and revolvers. As soon as the fact of the robbery was learned the sheriff of San Bernardino County, with a posse and a couple of bloodhounds, started on the trail of the robbers. Detectives have gone south to work on the case. Mr. Crowell, route agent for Wells, Fargo & Co., stated that the loss is less than $100, but would not give the exact amount. He interposed an objection to Messenger Potts making a statement as to what the robbers did with the safe, declaring that this might prove injurious to the efforts of the officers who are seeking the capture of the robbers. Notwithstanding the incessant firing kept up, no one was hurt and no damage was done beyond the breaking of the express car door.

PARIS, Dec. 27.—The police at Beziers have learned that the alleged bomb explosion that occurred in the church there during the service of midnight mass on Christmas Eve was the work of a practical joker. A man who thought it would be funny to startle the worshippers set off a squib in the church and caused a momentary panic. It is probable that the authorities will compel the man to pay dearly for his joke.

Where the Bombs Were Concealed.

BARCELONA, Dec. 27.—Sivepol, the commissioner, who has confessed that he made the moulds for the bombs used by Jose Codina, the Lyceum Theatre bomb-thrower, states that for some time the bombs used by Codina were hidden in vases containing artificial flowers in the house of Codina's mistress.

An Injunction to Restrain the Strike.

ST. PAUL, Dec. 27.—A document was delivered into the hands of U.S. Marshal Danahower last evening which may have the effect of deterring the engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen and telegraphers of the Northern Pacific Railway from striking. It was issued by Judge Caldwell of the U.S. Circuit Court and is in effect an injunction to keep the men from striking. The 150 delegates here from the various unions are in an angry state of mind. At their conference this afternoon they were told by General Manager Kendrick of the Northern Pacific that no modification of the January schedule could be given them. The men have been here since the 18th awaiting Mr. Kendrick. They claim that the company's action today in issuing through the court such a order was the plainest indication that the demands of the men were never seriously considered.

TO SAY ABOUT IT.

MONTREAL, SEPT. 15TH, 1893.

On March 1st, 1893, I met with an accident breaking my leg above the ankle, also dislocating the ankle. I went to Belleville Hospital where I laid eight weeks and left on crutches, with my ankle bandaged to the knee with a rubber bandage. I suffered terribly from swelling and contracted cords and used almost everything in the line of liniments without obtaining much relief. I suffered this way for four weeks, was told that would cure me if anything on earth would. I procured two bottles and used it, the first application giving me wonderful relief in removing pain, swellings and softening cords. I used it freely, and before three weeks had expired I was travelling again using only a cane, and in three to five weeks more was without cane or crutches. My weight is 221 pounds and my ankle and leg are as strong as ever. I thank your Liniment for my speedy recovery.

Yours truly,

—Cheese men up west are somewhat interested in the failure of W. W. Knapp, a Colborne buyer who has disappeared. He gave cheques dated ahead, at the time having money in a Belleville bank. When the cheques were presented the money had been withdrawn.

—Francis McMannus, clerk of the division court, Pictou, died on Monday of last week. He was for years connected with various hotels in the Pictou district. Deceased was an Irishman by birth and before coming to this country had served in the Royal Irish Constabulary.

—On Saturday night last Thos. Hodge, proprietor of the Tichborne House, skipped town "bag and baggage," and is now in Uncle Sam's domains. During the night two rigs loaded with the furniture of the house were driven out of town. Numerous creditors are left to mourn his loss.

—The first of a series of fortnightly socials held by the congregation of the Adolphustown Memorial Methodist church was held at the residence of Elias Clapp on Wednesday evening, 27th inst. Proceeds $10, in aid of the trust fund of the church. The next one will be held at the residence of R. Hawley, on Jan. 10th, 1894.

—Prof. R. F. Ruttan, of McGill College, son of Dr. Ruttan, Napanee, was among the passengers per str. Teutonic, of New York, for Liverpool, on his way to Egypt, where he expects to spend a well earned holiday of three months, returning in March. As there is a party of them going together no doubt they will have a good time.

—Prevention is Better than cure, and those who are subject to rheumatism can prevent attacks by keeping the blood pure and free from the acid which causes the disease. You can rely upon Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for rheumatism and catarrh, also for every form of scrofula, salt rheum, boils and other diseases caused by impure blood. It tones and vitalizes the whole system.

—On Christmas the decorations in the R. C. Church which had been prepared for the celebration of that day, caught fire. The alarm was sounded and the brigade turned out. At the same time a fire occurred in Radford's clothing store. The firemen were told of the latter and at once turned back, thinking the alarm had struck the wrong number. Both fires were fortunately extinguished without any serious damage being done.

—We learn with pleasure that Miss Katie Sharpe, formerly of Ernestown, has graduated with honors from the Boston City Hospital Training School, where she has spent the last two years. Miss Sharpe has for the last six months held a responsible position as head nurse in one of the female surgical wards of that hospital. Miss Sharpe has now accepted a position as night matron in a private hospital in the city of Malboro, Mass.

—An entertainment will be held in the Eastern Methodist church, on Tuesday evening, Jan. 2nd 1894. An excellent programme is being prepared. Among the attractions will be a recitation by Mr. Ferd Rockwell, solos by Miss Daly and others, also a selection "Gospel Bell" by several young ladies and children. Silver collection. The money is to purchase material for clothing to send to missionaries in the North West living on "starvation salaries."

—According to announcement on Tuesday evening, Dec. 19th, Mrs. Massey lectured in the Methodist church, Selby, under the auspices of the Selby Auxiliary of the W. M. S. Although the evening was stormy a goodly number assembled to listen to the talented lady who had been invited to speak. The meeting opened with devotional exercises after which the Rev. F. B. Stratton took the chair, which he filled with his usual tact and ability. After the reading of the report by the secretary Mrs. T. V. Seysmith was called upon for a reading, to which she responded by giving "An earnest appeal to the women of the Methodist church of Canada." Mrs. Massey, of Walbridge, was then called upon to address the meeting. She spoke for nearly an hour, holding the close attention of her audience as she plead the cause of missions, the duty and privilege of giving and portrayed, as only a woman can, the suffering which the women of Canada are called upon to alleviate. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Massey for her very interesting and instructive address. The choir gave excellent and appropriate music during the evening. Several names were added to the membership list of the auxiliary. The receipts of the evening amounted to $12 61.

side of the cut, rolled down on the track in front of the engine. The driver had noticed some dirt on the track and accordingly checked the speed of the train but the slide came so quick there was no time to reverse the engine. The stones and stumps in the heap derailed the engine and caused it to turn completely over. No one was hurt, the engineer and fireman escaping through the windows and the rest of the train coming to a standstill by the jar. Only some eight or nine passengers and the regular train hands were on board. The accident greatly inconvenienced some people at the intermediate stations, who had come from a distance to spend Xmas and were awaiting the arrival of the train next day to carry them to Napanee, some to catch trains on the Grand Trunk. Only one train made the return trip and of that the time was uncertain. The driver, Thos. Watson, was also in the Erinaville disaster being fireman under the late engineer Christie.

Grain Wanted,

The old Downey elevator and storehouse at the foot of Centre street is now open for the purchase of all kinds of grain where the highest prices will be paid in cash. Farmers will consult their own interests by calling before selling.

THOS. STEWART,
(Successor the Downey Co.)
A. R. BOYES, Agent.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. Chas. Stevens begs to thank his many friends and nominators for the honor conferred upon him in being elected Mayor of the town without a contest. His thanks are also tendered Mr. Jamieson and Dr. Leonard for so kindly retiring in his favor. Having served the town eight years as councillor, he hopes in the honorable position of Mayor to have still greater opportunities of advancing the town's interests.

EYESIGHT.

We wish to impress upon the public the importance of taking care of the eyes and never neglect using glasses when the first symptoms of failing sight appear. To those who are troubled night or day with imperfect vision we wish to state that we have recently purchased all the appliances for testing the eyes and Mr. H. E. Smith, having graduated as an optician, is therefore capable of correcting any visual defect. All eyes tested free of charge and every glass prescribed is guaranteed.

A Night with Kleiser.

The Kleiser entertainment, in the Opera Hall, on Friday evening of last week, was a very pleasant and enjoyable one. Mr. Kleiser as an elocutionist and humorist takes high rank, and his recitals, both humorous and dramatic, elicited such hearty applause that he found it necessary to respond to several encores during the evening. Mr. Kleiser's support was excellent. Miss Hall, who presided at the piano during the evening, gave an instrumental solo in a manner that ranks her as a pianist of more than ordinary ability. The ladies' quartette, Mrs. Herrington, Mrs. Burritt, Mrs. Herring and Miss Tilley, rendered, in a manner difficult to excel, a selection entitled "Spring" and in response to a hearty encore "Come where the lilies bloom." "My lady's bower" a pleasing solo by Mrs. Burritt won for her an encore. A Trio, "Il Praego," by Miss Burritt, Miss Tilley and Mr. A. N. Jewell, was rendered in a masterly manner and won the hearty plaudits of the audience. The attendance was not large, we are sorry to say, as the concert well merited an overflowing house.

Harry Lindley Scores a Success.

The Belleville Daily Ontario speaks in the following eulogistic terms of Harry Lindley, who will begin a two nights engagement in the Opera Hall here on Friday evening:

"Christmas night, theatrically, in Belleville is proverbially bad, so that the current topic yesterday was 'sorry for Harry Lindley to-night,' but as usual he falsified the prophets and broke the spell. The floor of the Opera House was full of our best citizens with ladies as the predominant feature. The Charity Ball is a Xmas play and is replete with sympathy for the day it celebrates and teaches Christianity to almost as great a degree as a sermon. The plot is undeniably great and the dialogue is unquestionably brilliant. The leading characters of the play were in good hands, the ladies in particular were admirably fitted. Miss Flint received a warm reception and as usual was emotionally great. Miss Sutton as Phyllis Lee was well adapted to the role. Miss Louise Lee, a new comer, made a big hit as the artless girl whilst Mrs. De Peyster with her cork leg was funny. A word of praise should be awarded to Miss Nathal. Mr. W. Campbell as the minister was dignified, earnest, passionate and loving by turns and well deserved the applause he obtained. Mr. Gordon as his brother was also good. Mr. Brouridge another accession was also humorous and effective as Alexander. Mr. Lindley as a judge of the olden time, as usual contributed to the mirth and without exaggerating obtained roars of laughter."

WILTON.

The teaming in the Methodist church on the 19th was a great treat. Music was furnished by Miss Florence Purdy and Mrs. A. Hunter, Harrowemith, and Miss Hayes, Ennisken. Very interesting addresses were given by Revs. Shorey and Rae, of Napanee; E. S. Shorey, Harrowemith; Rev. Lambert, Odessa, and Rev. Marsh, of Yarker. Uriah Wilson, M. P., very ably occupied the chair. The proceeds amounted to $50.

Mr. Florence, Queen's College, delivered an excellent sermon in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening.

A number from here attended the teaming in Odessa on Xmas night.

A horse, 28 years old, belonging to Wm. Neilson, died very suddenly a few weeks ago. He has been a very valuable beast.

Miss N. West, Yarker, spent a few days last week with Miss Rose Shibley.

Mr. Wm. Jordan and family are visiting Mrs. Jordan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Mills.

Miss Bertha Neilson is spending her vacation in Queensboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Owens spent Xmas in Kingston.

punish him for getting drunk?

Is it right to license a man to make paupers, drunkards and criminals and then tax sober and decent men to take care of them?

Is it right to license a dram-shop to teach vice and then tax people for schools to teach virtue?

Is it right to derive a revenue out of a traffic which no decent man defends?

Is it right to teach your boy not to drink and then uphold a party who licenses a place where he may drink?

Is it right to teach your boy to be honest and then vote a license to a place where he may be taught to gamble?

Is it right to teach a boy to restrain his passions and then vote to license a place where his worst passions will be inflamed?

Is it right to take care of your own boy and then vote to license a place which will ruin your neighbor's boy?

Is it right and shows good sense to build churches to save men and license rum hells to destroy them?

Is it right to preach justice and charity and then vote to license a thing to rob wives and children of their bread and bring lasting disgrace and misery upon them?

Is it right for you to go to the polls and vote without having studied these questions carefully, seriously and prayerfully?

TO CHRISTIANS.

When God called you into His service did He tell you to use your tongue to praise Him and your ballot to crucify Him?

Can you conscientiously use your political self, your ballot, to serve a sinful system, and then plead "my party" before God as an excuse for the wrong it does?

Will He hold you guiltless of using your ballot to help a party that abets a system his church condemns?

Have you a moral right to uphold a party that upholds a trade that is crowding hell with lost spirits?

Is it right to preach salvation to men and women and then go and vote damnation to them?

Can you repeat "Our Father, which art in Heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name, Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven," and then serve Him and do His will by assisting in putting any drink in power who is bound to license the drink curse?

Dare you cast a ballot that saloon men, gamblers and thieves endorse, and holy men and women condemn?

If you vote with either of the parties who favor license all hell will rejoice every time you are found preaching the funeral sermon over the remains of the drunkard or the rum murdered dead. Through your ballot His blood will be upon your skirts?

Farish of Bath.

The English church was brilliantly illuminated on Christmas Eve according to time honored custom of that body, and with its evergreen adornments looked superbly. Some 50 lamps in all were in use many of them supplied by the ladies of the congregation. There is to be another illumination on New Year's Eve principally of the chance with a new description of light which it is thought will be very effective.

The services on Christmas day as well as that of the preceding Eve, was, notwithstanding many drawbacks, prevalence of la grippe, bad roads, &c., &c., very successful. It was chorally rendered, as will be the one to be held on New Year's Eve (next Sunday) at 7 o'clock.

Parish of Camden.

Services Sunday next as follows: St. Luke's, Camden East, 11 a.m. with Holy communion at 7 p.m. Holy Trinity Yarker, 3 p.m., St. John's, Newburgh, 7 p.m., Orange Hall, Napanee Mills 10.30 a.m., Town Hall, Centerville, 3 p.m.

There will be midnight services in St. John's, Newburgh, on Sunday night commencing at 11.30, consisting of an address and Holy communion.

Monday next being the feast of the circumcision there will be a celebration of the Holy communion with an address in Holy Trinity in Yarker at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Mission of Ernestown.

Services next Sunday, 31st December, Matins at Hawley 11 a.m. Evensong at Morven at 3 p.m. and at Hope at 7 p.m.

Midnight service at St. Alban's church, Odessa, at 11.30 p.m.

The Christmas services in this mission were all well attended in spite of the rough weather and roads.
